SECTION 1 HOT TOPIC OF THE MONTH

TEXERCISE

It has been said that if any single pill carried the wide range of benefits that physical exercise does it would be considered a miracle drug.

Physical activity and proper nutrition improves health at any age. In addition to burning calories and toning your body, physical activity can lower the risk of developing conditions such as diabetes, hypertension, cancer, heart disease, high blood pressure, and obesity. Even people with a chronic disease report that regular physical activity reduces fatigue and pain, and helps manage daily symptoms. Activity can improve balance and strength, and slow the decline of bone mineral density that leads to osteoporosis. As a result, physically active people require fewer hospital stays and physician visits, and use less medication than people who are inactive. Physical activity and nutrition can also improve mental health and enhance sleep, as well as lower the risk of depression and anxiety. Of people over age 50, 98% know that exercise is important to staying healthy, so why are we all not more physically active?

TEXERCISE, a program of the Texas Department of Aging and Disability Services (DADS), educates and involves individuals and communities to adopt healthy lifestyle practices throughout their lifespan. TEXERCISE creates awareness and engagement in fitness and nutrition through a variety of methods including the TEXERCISE handbook and DVD. Both provide healthy living techniques, nutrition information as well as detailed explanations of exercises designed to build balance, strength, endurance and flexibility.

TEXERCISE also promotes community events that bring individuals of all ages, families, and neighborhoods together to add support to the process of adopting positive lifestyle changes. Through the TEXERCISE program communities are provided with tools and resources to implement fitness programs tailored to meet the local needs. A cornerstone resource is the Fit for the Health of It, a 12-week program that provides community settings with educational, motivational and recognition resources to inspire participation in a timed fitness program.

Some may believe that when you reach a certain age, there is not much you can do about your physical and mental condition. What a mistake! Everyday there are more and more examples of people who are dispelling the myths and stereotypes of what is possible for older adults and people with disabilities. It is never too late to make changes that will have a positive impact on your health or, indeed, all aspects of your life.

SECTION 3 ISSUES IN AGING

Take the "Age Well Live Well" Challenge!

The Texas Department of Aging and Disability Services (DADS) has developed the statewide "Age Well Live Well" initiative to encourage individuals and communities to plan for and address three key areas of aging: health and wellness, volunteerism and resource awareness. DADS is dedicated to providing the people it serves with services, programs and supports that encourage aging well and living well.

Age Well Live Well educates and supports local communities to provide:

- Awareness of aging issues and distribution of resources and programs
- Opportunities for individuals and groups to volunteer and engage in the community
- Activities that address the health of area residents, employees and the community

Through health and wellness programs, volunteer opportunities and collaborative partnerships, DADS Volunteer and Community Engagement (VCE) office assists with the development of community projects, enhances existing programs and services, and shares valuable information with the public about the services and supports that are available to older Texans and their families.

2011 Medicare: Changes for Premiums & Deductibles

For Medicare Part A, which pays for inpatient hospital, skilled nursing facility, and some home health care, the deductible paid by the beneficiary when admitted as a hospital inpatient will be $1,132 in 2011, an increase of $32 from the 2010 deductible. The Part A deductible is the beneficiary's cost for up to 60 days of Medicare-covered inpatient hospital care in a benefit period. Those who enroll in Medicare Advantage plans may have different cost-sharing arrangements.

The monthly premium paid by beneficiaries enrolled in Medicare Part B covers a portion of the cost of physicians' services, outpatient hospital services, certain home health services, durable medical equipment, and other items. The standard Medicare Part B monthly premium will be $115.40 in 2011, a $4.90 increase over the 2010 premium. However, the majority of Medicare beneficiaries will continue to pay the same $96.40 premium amount they have paid since 2008. The Part B premium a beneficiary pays each month is based on his or her annual income. If the modified gross income is greater than $85,000, the beneficiary is responsible for a larger portion of the estimated total cost of Part B benefit coverage.

Enrollees in Medicare Part D prescription drug plans pay premiums that vary from plan to plan depending on each plan's efficiency and scope of benefits. Beginning in 2011, Part D enrollees whose incomes exceed the same thresholds that apply to higher income Part B enrollees (greater than $85,000) to pay a monthly adjustment amount. These enrollees will pay the regular plan premium to their Part D plan and will pay the income-related adjustment to Medicare.
